County Scores Fatality Among Holiday Accidents

Labor Day weekend in Warren County was marred by several traffic accidents, including a highway fatality which occurred on Route 62 about six and a half miles north of Warren near Russell shortly after 1 a.m. Saturday.

Kenneth A. Davis, 40, 49A Shirley Lane, Jamestown, N.Y., was pronounced dead on arrival at Warren General Hospital at 1:20 a.m. following the two-car collision which hospitalized two other persons and injured three, according to state police at the local substation. The accident occurred, police stated, when a car operated by William Cunningham, 28, 740 Pleasant ct., Warren, southbound on Route 62, traveling at a high rate of speed, crashed head on with the Davis vehicle in the northbound lane.

Cunningham was admitted to Warren General Hospital following the accident with a lacerated left knee. Three other passengers in the Cunningham vehicle, William Stuart, 19, 8 Morrison st., Warren; Alvin Whipple, 20, 319 Jackson st., Warren; and Gail L. Baker, 26, 27 S. South st., Warren, were treated at Warren General police reported, for minor lacerations and bruises and then released.

Rebecca Davis, wife of the deceased accident victim was admitted to Warren General Hospital for possible internal injuries. Mrs. Davis was transferred to WCA Hospital Monday where her condition was listed by a hospital spokesman as satisfactory.

At 7:40 p.m. Saturday, state police of the local substation, investigated a one car accident in Mead Township about 2 miles east of Warren.

The accident occurred, according to police, when a car operated by Frank Devereaux, Sugar Grove, went out of control, hit a ditch and rolled over.

There were no injuries reported. Police stated damage to the Devereaux vehicle was set at $200.

A third accident investigated by state police occurred at 11:20 a.m. Saturday in Pittsfield at the intersection of Routes 6 and 27.

According to police, Harriette Gardner, 108 Maple st., Hornell, N.Y., driving west on Route 6, attempted to turn onto Route 27, and struck a car operated by Charles Stanovich, 8710 Mayfield rd., Chesterland, Ohio, which was eastbound on Route 6.

Again no injuries were reported; however, police indicated damages to the two vehicles totaled $205.

A 35-year-old Monroe st. man was injured in a one-car accident in the borough Saturday at 3:32 a.m., according to borough police.

Frank J. Smith, 209 Monroe st., was treated at Warren General Hospital for a laceration of the nose, according to a hospital spokesman. He was released following treatment.

The mishap occurred, police said, when Smith driving west on Fourth ave. made a left turn onto Pine st., striking a utility pole on the southwest corner of the street. According to police the driver allegedly fell asleep at the wheel. Smith will be charged with reckless driving, police stated.

All are invited to the second floor dining room of the Blue Manor to greet the U.S. Senate candidate who is expected to arrive in Warren between 8 and 8:15 a.m. on his first tour of the northern tier.

A press conference will be held by Schweiker during his brief stay in this city.

HHH Seeks Blue Ribbon Committee to Study Violence in Chicago

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey called Monday for creation of a blue ribbon committee to study the role of demonstrators, police and news media in last week's street violence at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

He made the suggestion in a television interview after he formally opened his campaign for the White House by marching in brilliant sunshine up New York's Fifth Avenue in the city's first Labor Day parade in five years.

The blue-ribbon committee, Humphrey said, should focus on "the actions of the demonstrators, the conduct of the police and the role of the media."

It should be named by groups such as the American Association of University Professors, the American Association of Law Schools and perhaps some of the nation's journalism schools.

Members could include policemen, lawyers, sociologists, media representatives but not public officials, he added.

During the interview, Humphrey said four times that Chicago police "overreacted" in dealing with last week's disorders. And he added that he is sure that Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago "didn't want to condone the beating of these people with clubs."

Before heading back to Minneapolis, and a week of rest and planning at his lakeside home in nearby Waverly, the vice president made a brief appearance on comedian Jerry Lewis' annual telethon for victims of muscular dystrophy.

Although a few antiwar demonstrators shouted at the vice president during his 25-block march up Fifth Avenue, and another group gathered outside the hotel where he appeared on the telethon, Humphrey's day was on the whole free of such incidents.

There were, however, a handful of anti-Humphrey signs, such as "Hu-Bird How Absurd," and several saying "Nixon's the ONE."

Humphrey was in good spirits, waving to the estimated 100,000 marchers from a reviewing stand for 90 minutes and engaging in small talk with well-wishers and the crowd of top labor officials, led by AFL-CIO President George Meany.

U.S. B52 Bombers Blast VC Approaches to Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers blasted enemy approaches to Saigon in saturation raids Tuesday in hopes of breaking up large troop formations possibly swarming up for a major attack on the capital.

Five waves of the eight-engine planes hit west and northwest of Saigon Monday and three more hit early Tuesday. Most of the strikes were from 25 to 35 miles northwest and north-northwest of Saigon.

A platoon of about 30 U.S. Marines ran into trouble Monday during a helicopter assault just three miles north of the Leathernecks' demilitarized zone position at the Rock Pile, scene of particularly savage fighting in 1966.

A Marine CH46 Sea Knight was shot down and destroyed, wounding five Americans on board. When the North Vietnamese troops finally pulled out of the area, they left 18 bodies behind compared to eight U.S. wounded, including those hit in the chopper.

Monday was the 23rd anniversary of Ho Chi Minh's 1945 proclamation on the independence of the Republic of North Vietnam. Radio Hanoi indicated the national day observances would continue through Wednesday.

There was little significant ground action across the country Monday following an early morning rocket attack on Da Nang which killed 27 civilians and wounded 46.

North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong said in an anniversary speech broadcast from Hanoi that the Communist command would "fight even more fiercely to defeat the U.S. aggressors."

He said the past six months were "a time of unprecedented great victories, and victories more splendid than ever are awaiting us."

Dong also said the United States must negotiate with the National Liberation Front "on all problems of concern to both sides in South Vietnam."

New Czech Presidium Seeks Fast Withdrawal of Troops

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's new 21-man Presidium met Monday with instructions from the Communist party Central Committee to obtain "the fastest possible withdrawal of foreign troops and conditions for carrying out the post-January liberalization policy."

In Paris, Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorin said Soviet troops would remain in Czechoslovakia "so long as there is a threat to the Soviet Union and other Socialist countries from Western and counterrevolutionary forces."

Reformist Communist party boss Alexander Dubcek made a speech before the Central Committee, blaming party leaders for not anticipating Soviet-led intervention, informed sources said.

In what appeared to be the traditional Communist exercise of self-criticism, Dubcek said the party did not pay enough attention to "the opinions of other states in the Warsaw Pact as a limiting factor in the speed and forms of our own political development."

This was interpreted as a warning to the new leadership to slow down reforms as long as the country is occupied by 650,000 Soviet, Bulgarian, Hungarian, East German and Polish troops.

The newspaper Vecerni Praha, the only paper published in Prague Monday, reported four decisions reached by the Central Committee:

— Support of the party leaders who negotiated the agreement in Moscow accepting the Soviet occupation.

— A re-statement of Czechoslovak membership in the Warsaw Pact and a repudiation of the idea of neutrality.

— An order to the Presidium to study the situation before the next party congress, now indefinitely postponed from its original Sept. 9 date.

— An order empowering the Presidium to work for speedy withdrawal of the occupation troops and implementation of the party's liberalization program evolved after the ouster of conservative President Antonin Novotny last January.

Romanians Hear USSR Will Not Invade Country

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Romanians heard with relief — and some skepticism — reports from Washington Monday that the Soviet Union had denied it planned an invasion of this independent-minded Communist country.

Some Western circles saw the reported Soviet denial as a possible sign of a political settlement to the crisis between Bucharest and Moscow that arose after the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria invaded Czechoslovakia last month.

Moscow was angered because Romanian's leaders openly sided with the liberal regime in Prague.

Most Western quarters agreed that Kremlin advocates of a hard-line policy might still decide to send the Soviet army across the 620-mile border to replace President Nicolae Ceausescu's leadership with more pliable men. They predicted this on any Ceausescu failure to convince the Kremlin of his loyalty.

The government and news media maintained silence on the Washington report, evidently for fear that publicity at this stage might bring new Kremlin pressure while the Soviet army is reported to be still massing troops along the Romanian border.

Chamber Sets Meetings On Routes 6 and 62

The Warren County Chamber of Commerce transportation committee will meet with district highways engineer William Troxell Wednesday to review the current status of the proposed widening of Route 62 and problems connected with the Route 6 bypass.

The committee will meet with Troxell at noon at the Blue Manor to discuss the Route 62 situation.

It was reported at the Chamber meeting that the railroad would consider abandoning portions of its right-of-way if requested by the state highway department to relieve the necessity of utilizing right-of-way on the west side of Route 62. The committee also learned that present plans call for a 16-foot median strip which would permit left-hand turns, rather than the barrier previously proposed.

According to Barry Epstein, executive vice president of the Chamber, widening of Route 62 originally called for a barrier strip which would not have permitted left turns for those traveling north into Jamesway and other stores located in that North Warren vicinity. This has now been changed, he said, to incorporate grass median safety lanes, which will permit left turns.

Following the luncheon to discuss widening of Route 62, Troxell will meet with Clifford Johnson, chairman of the Chamber transportation committee; Victor Miller, borough manager; and Epstein to discuss problems concerning connecting roads between the Main st. interchange for the Route 6 bypass on the South Side and Pennsylvania ave. Widening of some streets will be necessary, Epstein said.

The 51st Bear Lake School and Community Reunion opened Friday evening, Aug. 30, with the crowning of Miss Carletta Blankenship as Queen of Bear Lake by the 1967 Queen, Elizabeth Hamm. Susan Smith was selected as first runner up, and Marie Oviatt, Donna Shamp and Sheryl Martin were designated members of the royal court.

The Rev. Lynn Ostrander and Mrs. Hollis Morton performed a duet after the crowning.

Friday, after the crowning ceremonies, a woodsman's contest was held to test the skill and strength of sawyers.

In the cross cut competition, the team of Leonard Dyer and Butch Joint (20.5 sec); of the Rev. Ostrander and Ed Nelson (25.4 sec); of Thomas Smith Jr. and Donald Jaquith (28 sec); and of Basil Skinner and Ivan Ayling (28.2 sec) won places.

In the 48 to 52 inch class, the teams of Merle Eaton took first; Gordon Earls, second; Fred Wright, third; and Sam Fish-er, fourth.

In the parade held Labor Day, the Sundowners of Warren were declared the winning drum and bugle corps.

The Union City Cadets won first in the baton corps contest, and the Greenville VFW Cadets took second.

The comedy team of Ken Crosby and an unknown partner won the comedy prize for funniest. The Pittsfield Hillbillies ran a close second.

Among the floats, the entry of Chestnut Hill took first. The Bear Lake Firemen's auxiliary won second prize, and the Sunday School of Watts Flats, N.Y., was awarded third.

In the baby show Monday afternoon, Dean and Candi Jukes were the only twins. The oldest baby at the show was Paul Phillip Keppel Jr., and the youngest baby was Lisa Marie DeVore. The baby with the whitest hair was Bryan Manwaring, and the baby with the reddist hair was Josephine Marie Wells. The baby that had been brought the longest distance to take part in the show was Valerie Sue Lud.

In the garden tractor pulling contest held Monday, there were three classes according to horsepower.

In the seven horsepower and under category, John Vistrand took first; Pat Sweeney, second; and Dennis Chapman, third.

In the seven and one-half to ten horsepower class, Roger Jackson won first place, Wiggers, second; and Carl Briggs, third.

In the ten and a half to 12 horsepower class, John Vistrand and Dave Pudder came through with first and second places respectively.

Philly Ups Teachers' Pay To Avert Threatened Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Board of Education, hoping to avert a threatened city-wide teachers strike at midnight Thursday, sweetened its wage proposal to the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers by almost $1 million Monday.

The wage package offer — up from $10.1 million to nearly $11 million — was rejected by the union's chief contract negotiator John Ryan. He termed the board's latest proposal "unrealistic" and said the teachers sought a package in the neighborhood of $30 million.

Ryan said the union's demands were based on a reduction of the minimum class size to 25, salary increases and the creation of a health and welfare fund for the 12,500 public school teachers.

The $10.1 million package offered last week would give the teachers a 9 per cent salary boost this year and next. It would also bring the starting salary of $6,100 to $7,200 by 1972.

The latest offer would give a better than 18 per cent salary boost over the next two years to teachers with four to 10 years of experience.

A spokesman for the school board said the latest offer is "the maximum" it can afford to approve under its current $243 million budget for 1968-69.

In a related development, school board president Richardson Dilworth said he hoped to meet with Mayor James H. J. Tate and the city council in an effort to settle the issue.

Also, the school board scheduled to meet with Police Commissioner Frank L. Rizzo Tuesday to discuss procedure for the opening of school Friday in the event of a strike.

Humane Society Meets Wed. To Make Plans for Winter

Plans for the placing and care of homeless dogs next winter will be first on the docket at the September meeting of the Warren County Humane Society this Wednesday, September 4. All members and interested persons are invited to the meeting at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. R. Z. Morrison, 603 Market street.

Permission has been granted to show homeless dogs along the fence at the old Hertz property at 2nd avenue, across from Penna. Gas Co., at the Annual Sidewalk Festival coming up later this month. Homes must be found for a number of dogs which the Humane Society has been caring for this summer. With the coming of cold weather warmer quarters are necessary. The Humane Society placed 13 dogs at last year's Sidewalk Festival, and hopes to find homes for more this year.

"People are amazed at what dogs we have," said Mrs. Joseph Smith, chairman of the Dog Committee. "Each dog is attractive, well-mannered and healthy. We are careful to place dogs only in homes where the dog is well-treated and loved. We plan to check on all the homes where our dogs are placed."

Dogs offer protection to women living alone. Right now the Humane Society has a large number ready for adoption.

"Our goal is to get a permanent shelter for dogs, a place we own and staff," said Jack Downs, president. "We are trying to find a small place not far from town to buy and equip. Anyone with suggestions, come to the meeting and tell us about it."

"To get a dog, call the Warren County Humane Society's number, 726-1951, and give the information to a recording. Soon you will get a call from an officer of the Humane Society, arranging for a time to see the dogs. This may seem rather round-about, but it works out very well. We hope all interested in dogs will come to our September meeting Wednesday, Sept. 4 at 8 p.m. at Mrs. Morrison's, 603 Market street," Mr. Downs concluded.

TAXI FOR TABBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A cab driver was surprised when he answered a call from the dispatcher, who told him to pick up a cat at a certain address and deliver it to Waggener High School.

The cat belonged to Vance Taylor, one of the actors in a school play. The play called for a cat so Taylor sent home for his pet.

SEXTUPLETS, MAYBE?

LEBANON, Ky. (AP) — Six of the seven newborn babies at the hospital here were delivered recently by Dr. Salem George.

Attached to each crib was an identification card on which George's name had been written across the bottom.

This confused one visitor, who was looking through the window at the new arrivals.

"My gosh, look at that," he exclaimed. "That fellow Salem George sure has got himself a bunch of kids."

Parmenter will present charters to the two embryo chapters, Sun 'N Fun Seekers of Union City and Happy Hounds of Erie. Presidents Clyde Magee and Sid Thomas will be on hand to accept the charters for their respective chapters of N.C.H.A.

"Nope. I couldn't eat six pieces," Diddle answered.

Quake's Toll in Kakhk 6,000 Killed or Missing

Editor's note: AP correspondent Parvis Raelin was the first news service reporter to visit Iran's stricken earthquake region. Here is his report.

By PARVIS RAEIN

KAKHK, Iran (AP) — Swollen bodies, piles of debris and a crumbling mosque are all that remains of the once prosperous town of Kakhk after Saturday's disastrous earthquake.

An official spokesman said the overall death toll from the double quakes in Eastern Iran probably would be between 10,988 and 11,588. This town itself had 7,000 citizens and 6,000 are believed dead.

Some of the people of Kakhk wandered aimlessly, weeping. Others were too numb to cry.

The search for the missing went on. The almost total absence of children was immediately apparent.

Normally they would be climbing over the bulldozers and trucks. But in Kakhk nearly all the children are dead.

Only 3,500 bodies have been recovered in Kakhk, which lies almost on the edge of the great Dasht Kavir Desert, hiding behind a range of hills.

Along the town's streets the people stand, bloodstained clothing their only possession.

Little Parven, a 5 year old girl, pleads: "Allah I want my parents... I need my mother."

She is the only survivor of a family of seven.

An elderly woman and her 3-year-old grandson were pulled out alive Monday—48 hours after the quake struck. She was reading the Koran, when rescuers reached her. The child was crying for food.

"Suddenly the ground was moving under my feet, then everything went dark and with a deafening crash everything crumbled down," said farmer Javid Tabasi, 42.

"A few seconds later there were screams and cries in every direction."

Three orphans, Homa, 5, Zahra, 4, and Rasoul, 2, are still waiting for their dead parents to "return from the wheat field."

A Samovar, with a teapot and cup nearby, stands in the remains of a room. Clothing hangs drying on a line.

The feeling of the survivors is one of hopelessness. They look around and see arms and hands sticking up grotesquely in the rubble.

Troops, Red Lion and Sun (Red Cross) personnel and Boy Scouts toll relentlessly.

Hundreds of trucks and water tankers are on their way to the area and even building materials are being sent to begin the long job of reconstruction.

It will be a race against time, before the present mild late summer weather ends.

Tents are being set up, food distributed to the hungry and shelter given to those needing medical attention.

Thirty-one towns and villages are devastated. The rescuers agree that they can never hope to dig out many of the dead.

Their final resting places will be beneath the shattered homes that once stood in east Iran.

No Time for Apathy

Despite concerted efforts to effect a surge in voter registrations in Warren County, apathy continues to be reflected with this area one of the lowest in the state.

With the registration office in the court house open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays; with special field registrations set up in precincts where they have petitioned for such service and even with the urging of party leaders and the League of Voters, too many citizens fail to assume their responsibility—even when it comes to electing a president and vice president; a congressman and U.S. Senator; an assemblyman or state senator; an auditor general and a state supreme court judge.

While reforms are in order in the election system, it's still the grass roots impetus that can win—but only through those eligible to cast their votes and let their voices be heard.

The county commissioners have consented to have registrars at the Warren post office from 1-8 p.m. Friday for the convenience of new voters or those who need to re-register.

Let's get with it and swell this county's list of eligible voters regardless of party affiliation.

Sept. 16 is the last day to register before the Nov. 5 general election.

Not So This Time

A walk through the floor of the amphitheater moments before the nomination of Hubert Humphrey in Chicago was quite enough to convince anyone that the bitterness was of quite another order than that which sits up among the losers after a heart-aching loss. In 1952 the followers of Senator Robert Taft felt keenly their bitterness against not so much the winner Dwight Eisenhower, as against those who had managed his campaign, a part of which was the allegation ("Thou shalt not steal," the placards spoke) that Senator Taft, of all people, was corrupting political morals. But in due course, the bitterness was overcome. Not so this time.

The reason hasn't anything at all to do with the preposterous excuses that have been freely put forward to justify pulling the Democratic Party to pieces. The argument that Senator McCarthy was the clear choice of the democratic voters, let alone of the people, was simply an act of faith. Senator McCarthy engaged in a number of primaries. He lost one to Lyndon Johnson, two or three to Bobby Kennedy. The assertion that he was clearly more popular than Hubert Humphrey was neatly dashed by the Harris Poll, announced on the morning of the nomination, indicating that, up against Nixon, McCarthy and Humphrey

SYLVIA PORTER

New Revolution in Housing

The most far-reaching, gigantic, potentially revolutionary housing law in the entire history of the U. S. went quietly on our statute books in the pre-convention confusion of early August.

It's a giant of an act, 300 pages long! It's so packed with new or vastly liberalized provisions that even housing specialists admit they're not yet aware of all that the law contains.

Porter

As Congress rushed to take off for the conventions, House and Senate members just lumped together their favorite proposals and passed them, with the result that the law is loaded with new and in some cases, dual approaches. When the "sleepers" are discovered, their ramifications could be extraordinary.

Because the law is so massive and because of the 1968 election turmoil, it will be months before it is translated from paper to reality by the appropriate Federal agencies. It could be a year before builders, buyers, renters, investors, even begin to feel the impact. Meanwhile, housing experts are working around the clock to interpret the law for their industry clients. As an illustration, Prentice-Hall is now privately circulating an exhaustive analysis by two of its editors, Eli Warach and Everett Dashoff.

From this private report and an interview with Warach, I have obtained the material in today's and tomorrow's columns.

To summarize and dramatize what a tremendous breakthrough this is, the 1968 housing law could:

- + Bring decent housing for the first time within the reach of low income families, those with yearly earnings as low as $3,000 to around $7,800. This would be done through subsidies to help cut the monthly mortgage payments for these families to levels they can afford.
- + As a result, this could, to quote President Johnson, be "the magna carta to liberate our cities." It could provide the means through which 6,000, 000 units would be built for poor and moderate income families in the next decade, thereby replacing all existing substandard dwelling units in the nation.
- + Also bring decent rental housing within the reach of low income families by providing subsidies to slash the monthly rents to levels which they can afford.
- + Establish a new concept of Government sponsored-business partnerships via a National Housing Corporation. In partnership with this corporation, local private builders and investors would get expert assistance and financial aid from the Federal Government to build and invest in low income housing. And of course the government would be subsidizing the low income buyers. "This could be a completely new route to new fortunes in housing," says Warach, "and at the same time the government would accomplish its aim of social-economic improvement."
- + Help you, the middle income family, build your dream vacation home. This would be done through a substantial liberalization of financing sources for vacation homes.
- + Give deteriorating neighborhoods a financial shot-in-the-arm by vastly expanding Federal Housing Administration (FHA) insurance for loans to repair, rehabilitate, construct or purchase homes in these older neighborhoods.

- + Offer dignity as well as jobs to slum dwellers by a provision that workers on rebuilding and remodeling projects in slum areas must come from within the areas, if at all possible.
- + Stimulate rebuilding in the slums through a new National Insurance Development Corporation to provide reinsurance for insurance companies in high-risk areas. This would put an end to "tight" insurance, and could, suggests Warach, "do away with the practice of 'red lining' entire neighborhoods under which there is an automatic denial of insurance because of location alone. Warach thinks that "many of these old buildings may be a good buy now."
- + Allow the FHA much greater leeway in deciding whether or not a family qualifies for mortgage insurance. This would be of vital assistance to tens of thousands of low-moderate income families who have been denied FHA mortgages because they had damaged their credit rating in the past.
- + Provide outright grants to families displaced from their own or rented homes by slum clearance projects to help them relocate quickly in decent dwellings.

The changeover in the White House cannot help but delay implementation of the act. But the fundamental point is that this fantastic housing package is law. Its possibilities are awesome.

Tomorrow: How the law would work for you.

RUSSELL BAKER

The Etiquette Revolution

(C) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — From the mailbag of Miss Cornelia De Rigor, the distinguished authority on contemporary American etiquette:

"Dear Miss De Rigor, "A television commentator during the Democratic convention said something that I didn't want to hear, and I wrote him an angry letter beginning with the statement 'You Stink.' He replied, saying that he finds my language 'offensive.' How can I respond to this insult without being in a bad taste?"

Baker

"S...Delicate."

"Dear Delicate, "It is perfectly acceptable nowadays to express your resentment naturally, or to 'do your thing,' as we say. If you have no 'thing' of your own for such situations, I suggest that you obtain a quart of the popular 'stink acid' and pour it through the scum's mail slot. That will teach him to keep his big televised lip buttoned the next time he doesn't think the way you do."

"Dear Miss De Rigor, "As a police officer required to preserve order in the street, I was recently pursuing a group of hairy young men when several middle-aged ladies got in my way. I pushed several of them through a plate glass window in order to clear a path. My wife, who saw it on television, said I had committed a faux pas. Is she correct?"

"Dear Uncertain, "Your wife is still living in the 1950's. When people are to be knocked through plate glass windows, women should always go first."

"Dear Miss De Rigor, "While confronting a police line recently, I walked from cop to cop shouting, 'Pig, pig, pig!' and thinking, 'To my dismay, the sergeant in charge of the line said, 'Sonny, why don't you quit playing the fool?' And all the cops laughed at me. What should I have done to make a more graceless contribution to society?"

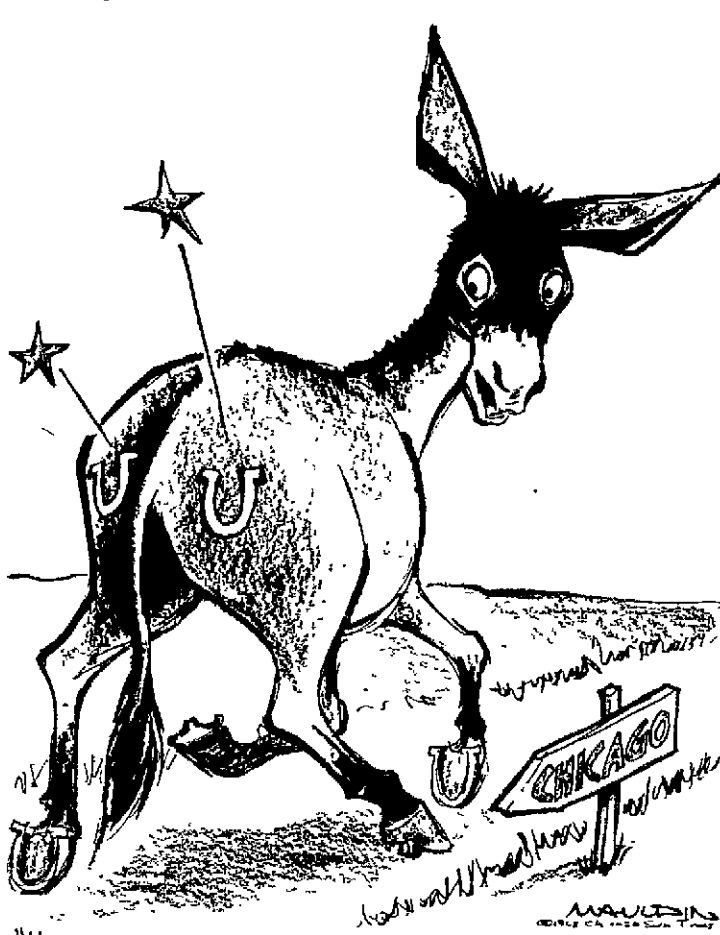

"S...Unblooded,"

"Dear Unblooded, "The general decline in American manners can only be impeded by policemen such as you describe. I suggest that you write several angry letters to the mayor pointing out that unless he hires policemen willing to take draconian measures against such foul-mouthed vermin as yourself, your wife and daughter will be too terrified to use the streets and you will vote against him in the next election."

"Dear Miss De Rigor, "At a street rally the other day the speaker urged all of us to 'Get a gun, get a gun, get a gun!' So I wrote off in the mail and got myself a .50-caliber machine gun. Now my wife says it was inconsiderate of me not to have got one for her too. Is she right? Should a gentleman offer a lady a shooting iron?"

"S...Loving Husband,"

"Dear Loving Husband, "Yours is not so much a question of etiquette as a question of woman's rights. Every person has the constitutional right to own a gun, and refusal to arm your wife amounts to an infringement upon her rights. It is not enough to tell her she may use your gun, because there may come a day when you do not want her to shoot the party she wants to shoot, particularly if it happens to be yourself. As with toothbrushes, the family rule on guns should be 'his' and 'hers.'"

"HOW DID I MANAGE TO DO THAT TO MYSELF?"

PEARSON & ANDERSON

Congestion Poses Problem

WASHINGTON — Now that the nation has gotten over the political hiccups at Chicago and Miami Beach, Washington today will start grappling with the long delayed problem of congested airports.

In the Department of Transportation there is an electrically lit map of the USA revealing that at 17 airports planes take off or land every one to two minutes. The map also shows 41 airports where planes take off or land every two to three minutes. In addition, there are 32 airports where planes take off or land every three to four minutes, and 92 airports where traffic goes in and out every six or so minutes.

By far the greatest congestion is between Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Washington, together with the mid-west air metropolises of Chicago.

And probably the biggest problem Secretary of Transportation Alan Boyd has to cope with is the powerful lobby of the private airplanes. This lobby, the AOPA, the Aircraft Owners & Pilots Association, is the equivalent of the National Rifle Association in its influence over Congress. Its theory is that one executive in a private plane is more important than 180 tourists in a big jet 707. The big executive should land first.

Sixteen per cent of the traffic coming into Kennedy airport in New York is made up of private planes. The private traffic into La Guardia and Newark is even greater — 30 per cent. The flight rule that governs these airports is "first come, first served."

In other words, a small private plane able to fly below the clouds can hop in ahead of a big airliner arriving from London or Paris which has to remain stacked in the air space somewhere between New York and Boston. Or the big jets flying up from Washington sometimes have to circle over New Jersey for one to three hours while traffic piles up over La Guardia and smaller private planes hop in ahead.

"General aviation," the term applied to private planes, is the "holy cow" of air traffic. The CAB doesn't like to discuss it. The Department of Transportation has nebulous power to control it. And Congress runs for cover whenever anyone tries to put commercial traffic ahead of private traffic.

One remedy for air traffic congestion obviously is more airports. This, however, takes money at a time when Congress has decreed a smaller budget. It also requires local communities to pick areas not too far from cities where real estate values are not too high and where too many people do not object to moving. In addition, there is the problem of bird refuges which has cropped up in Morristown, N. J., where the New York Port Authority had planned to locate a big jet airport. The bird protectors of northern New Jersey ruled otherwise.

Pennsylvania Battlefield

HARRISBURG — With Labor Day out of the way, Pennsylvanians now can expect to be bombarded with a somewhat awe-inspiring barrage of campaign fluff — that threatens to pale all previous fluff efforts!

Why Labor Day historically has been seized upon as the great kickoff for fall campaigns never seems to have been fully clarified, other than the fact that it just appears to be as good a peg on which to fire a campaign musket as any other, from a psychological standpoint.

Both major parties today recognize the past week end as the last of the soothing lulls before the storm.

How does this shape up for Pennsylvania in the two months ahead?

To begin with, the Keystone State again apparently is destined to be one of the major campaign battlefields in the presidential flap this fall.

Both parties recognize the strategic importance of carrying Pennsylvania in November. The fact has been demonstrated repeatedly within the short space of the past few months; it is destined to come more to the fore in the short time ahead.

The critical point is that both Democrats and Republicans on the national level believe they can swing the Keystone State's vote lever pullers in their respective direction. This feeling on the part of strategists of both major parties is not without good foundation.

Big, populous, industrial and vote-heavy Pennsylvania today is a campaign plum worth plucking for either party; it wasn't that way too many years ago when one party — the Republican Party — could be counted on to hog the show, lock, stock and flint.

Historically a toothy and strong Republican state, Pennsylvania has slipped into the Democratic column on presidential runoffs only five times in the past one hundred years.

The most recent such venture into the Democratic woods came four years ago when President Johnson carried Pennsylvania as well as all the camels in the Mojave Desert. Prior to that it was the late John F. Kennedy in 1960, and earlier it was the era of Franklin D. Roosevelt, FDR carrying Pennsylvania in three of his four campaigns, the last one the campaign of 1944.

One Hell of a Check

"Be a good boy till I get home," Charlotte said, snatching the toy pistol from her boy and jamming it into her handbag. "Guns," she said, "is pure unadulterous trouble." The sun was high and hot and Charlotte stood on the porch looking over the rickety bungalow, wondering why it always looked good after a few sips of wine and so awful a few hours later.

She blew the wisps of dark hair from her forehead. It was a tired house, the porch creaking with arthritis, the weeds tall and sturdy around the sun-washed clapboards. Three old cars rusted in back. They had more windows than the house. "Be a good boy."

The kid thought his mother was beautiful. Her features ran like wax down the side of a candle. She wore a cotton print housecoat wrapped around one and a half times. The burl of her knees stretched down the shins. Charlotte had always been a housemaid — "a day worker," she called it — and, except for the gentle anesthesia of wine, was a hard-working, honest woman.

Ten years before she had married Gunnar Stevens, the only man in the little town who had lost his temper the day he was born and never found it. The utterance of a single unkind word could incite Gunnar to punch a policeman, a filling station owner, a buddy, or a wal. He was always abjectly sorry, and he would crawl to make his apologies, but Gunnar altered a lot of local features.

Last Saturday he had gone to the county fair with some friends and he had taken the rent money. Gunnar asked his friends how to tell a fast horse from a slow one and they told him to count the rhythm of the hoofbeats. He had held onto the rent money for four races. In the fifth, he had seen a bay horse named Behometonite and Gunnar counted the beats and had gone to the window and slid the rent money — $42 — under the grille.

Charlotte had always maintained that everything had happened to her and Gunnar but, with prayer, everything came out all right. They lived a dally cliff hanger. She believed in the Bible and the sip of wine — her unsophisticated tranquilizers.

Gunnar asked his friends about the race, and they explained: "See, it's a quarter-mile race so that jocks have to rap them horses around here eight times." Gunnar nodded. "Most of them boys," said his sage buddies, "carries eight marbles apiece in their mouth and every time they pass the finish line they spit one. When the last one comes out they all know they're in the home stretch."

Behometonite came out of the gate with all four feet off the earth. He flew. Gunnar Stevens figured to buy himself a motorcycle and present Charlotte with a case of wine. That horse moved. After seven laps, he slowed down to decide whether he should catch up with the pack ahead or let them come up from behind.

A thinking horse is as dangerous as a woman who can read a man's mind. Behometonite began to meditate. Gunnar Stevens' expression didn't change as four horses passed Behometonite. He just sighed and walked slowly down the grandstand, across the infield, and hopped the fence. He held Behometonite's bridle in his left hand, to the surprise of one and all, and hit him flush on the mouth with his right.

Gunnar was in the county jail. Getting out of that stall, the judge said, would come to $200. Nobody had that kind of tea. Charlotte had a check for $25 — three day's pay plus a dollar for gasoline — and she drove off to the bank knowing that the good Lord would bring her man back to her. She liked to tell her girl friends that she was loyal — she drank and drove Thunderbird.

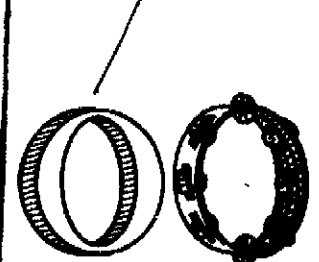

The car looked as though it had spent a couple of sunny years in a swamp. It had one gear: low. The springs on the front seat were so insulating that Charlotte used an old sofa pillow. At the bank, she presented her check and Miss Effie, the clerk behind the window, said it would have to be endorsed. Charlotte opened her handbag to find a pen. Her son's toy gun was on top. Miss Effie swallowed and said: "That will be all right."

She handed out bundles of currency. Charlotte kept mumbling: "Thank you. Thank you." She left with $1,440. At a nearby tavern, she slipped wine and bought drinks for the house. "I tell you," she said solemnly, "that was one hell of a check."

The police bagged her, well bagged. She had $1,200. When the law unraveled the situation, it was decided that Charlotte had not intended to hold up anybody. The next morning, she went to court and paid $200 and got her man home. "You just gotta have faith in the Lord," she said.

President Spends Holiday On LBJ Ranch

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson spent the Labor Day holiday around the LBJ ranch in the rolling hill country. And the Texas White House said Monday was just a quiet day with his family.

Many of the days have been like that for the last month. The President took advantage of the break in congressional sessions at Republican and Democratic national convention time and flew to the ranch Aug. 2. He has been here ever since, except for three days, when he went to Detroit for a speech and then to Washington.

It hasn't been all loafing for Johnson—it never is for any President.

So Sunday night and Monday morning, aides reported, he was going through some of the paper work in a pouch brought down by a courier on a plane from Washington. He also was on the telephone with Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford and with his top White House assistant on national security affairs, Walt W. Rostow.

BAD LUCK IN SPADES

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — A Golden soldier in Vietnam wrote to his mother asking her to have some aces of spades printed and mailed to him. He specified that a skull and crossbones embellish the big spade in the center, explaining he was told the Viet Cong regard these as bad-luck symbols. The woman mailed 8,000 of the unlucky cards to him after a Denver firm printed them for her without charge.

Over $14,000 Contributed To Keep Philly Girl Alive

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "I'm hoping I'll be able to dance again," says Christine Baranoski from her wheelchair. "I'm keeping my fingers crossed."

For more than two years, Christine, now 16, has been battling a kidney disease that generally brings quick death to its victims. Science — and human kindness — is helping her win her fight.

"I never thought there were so many nice people in the world," says Mrs. Joseph Baranoski, her mother.

She was talking about the contributions, ranging from a penny to an anonymous $1,000, that were sent in by friends, neighbors and strangers to buy and operate an artificial kidney machine to keep Christine alive.

"It would be nice if the machine arrives in time for my birthday on Sept. 12," says Christine, who can't wait to become 17.

She hopes to get back to classes this fall at St. Hubert's Catholic High School "and learn how to type." She's missed a lot of time — in the hospital last year about 160 days and this year 12 weeks — "so I have a lot to catch up."

Christine needs the $6,500 machine for three treatments weekly to cleanse her body of toxic blood substances her kidneys can't eliminate. It costs about $7,000 a year to operate — just about what her father, a rubber plant pressman, makes annually.

Her parents cashed in their life insurance, and their bonds, and used up all their savings to pay the medical expenses so far. Her three sisters and two brothers, all married, also have paid many hospital and laboratory bills.

But the costs never stop — at $40 a treatment.

That's why the Christine Life Line Fund was started by classmates. It now has more than $14,000.

"Christine will need the machine the rest of her life," says Andrew P. O'Hanlon, chairman of the fund's board. "This means the family will have a continuing need of funds to operate it."

There is no government money available now for such a medical emergency, which is why the public has stepped in to help.

Doctors still are considering a kidney transplant but it's a dangerous procedure in her case, and no compatible donor has been found.

"She's always smiling, she's always saying she feels better and she never, never really complains," says her mother.

The disease choked off the calcium in her system and affected her legs, turning them crooked at the knees.

New York, N.Y. (Special): Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases — to promptly stop itching, relieve pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

AWOL GI Eats Roots, Sucks Blood

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — An AWOL paratrooper told the rancher he surrendered to Sunday that he ate roots and sucked blood from a cut on his arm to stay alive while dodging a posse for nearly three days.

The fugitive, Darrell Chavarria of Klamath Falls, Ore., shot himself in the stomach with a hidden gun shortly after turning himself in to an irrigation crew at a ranch 50 miles west of Fresno. He was reported in fair condition in a Fresno hospital.

The 18-year-old soldier became the object of one of the region's largest manhunts when he escaped near Greenfield 75 miles to the west after being arrested on a stolen car warrant. He kidnapped a police officer who escaped unharmed a few hours later.

Rancher Raymon Monetti said the youth surrendered meekly after he stepped out of a field and ran into the irrigation crew.

"He handed me three guns and told me he was hungry, tired, thirsty and scared. He wanted to see his mother. He was a pretty well scared young man," Monetti said.

Monetti said he took Chavarria to his house and gave him food and water before calling officers.

"I didn't see another gun and the officer that picked him up frisked him good."

Monetti said Chavarria told him he began sucking blood out of the cut after unsuccessful attempts to dig a shallow well in the sunblistered hilly area. Temperatures climbed to 120 degrees during the search.

Chavarria whipped the hidden gun out of his pants leg and shot himself while sitting in a constable's car parked in the underground garage at the Fresno County sheriff's office.

"I don't think he wants to live," said the youth's mother, Mrs. Barbara Cramer, who drove to her son's side from Klamath Falls.

Mrs. Cramer said her son had been in trouble before and had tried to take his life on another occasion.

"Darrel always said he would rather be dead than behind bars," she said.

Authorities at Ft. Bragg, N.C., where Chavarria had taken paratrooper training said the soldier had been absent without leave since Aug. 12.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR READERS: Recently a woman wrote a letter and signed it "Hate Myself." Her problem—she couldn't make a good cup of coffee. I printed her letter and asked if anyone in the reading audience had a suggestion for the beleaguered lady. The response was beautiful. Here is a sampling.

EU CLAIRE, WIS.: I'm Norwegian and everyone expects a Norwegian to make good coffee. When I first got married my husband said, "Your coffee is terrible. Are you sure you are Norwegian?" Well, Ann, I cried for two days over that insult. Then I finally decided I would learn how to make the best coffee in town. I experimented with all types of coffee makers—electric, drip, open pot, fresh ground, vacuum packed, and I even ground my own coffee beans. I still couldn't please him. One day I invited my next-door neighbor in for a cup of coffee and she said, "How come you are using water from the tap? Your coffee must taste awful." I asked her what she was talking about. "Oh," she said, "The water around here has a lot of mineral in it. For good coffee you have to use bottled water." The next day I bought bottled water and now my husband says I am the best coffee maker in the world—and this includes Norway.

DAVENPORT, IOWA: Most people who can't make good coffee are lazy. They don't scrub the pot after each using. Tell "Hate Myself" a little elbow grease is the answer.

BOSTON: I'll bet I know why that woman can't make good coffee. She probably scrubs the pot after each using. Tell her to stop it. This makes the water taste of metal and it ruins the coffee. If she'll just rinse the pot with lukewarm water her coffee will taste better.

TOPEKA, KANSAS: Funny how people will buy the most expensive gowns and shoes but when it comes to coffee they reach for the cheapest brand and try to save a few pennies. Tell "Hate Myself" to loosen up and buy the de luxe brands and she'll be surprised at the difference.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.: I used to spend a fortune on coffee—I even arranged to have a friend send me some from Brazil. Then one day when I was shopping in a supermarket I smelled the aroma of coffee being ground. It was awfully cheap but it smelled so good I bought a bag. It was the best coffee I ever tasted and I've been using it ever since.

BOISE: My coffee secret is simple: I throw an egg into the pot—shell and all. When I pour it, I use a tea strainer.

SANTA BARBARA: A pinch of salt in the coffee brings out all the hidden flavor.

SAN FRANCISCO: Most people serve rancid coffee and wonder why it's bitter. They don't realize that unless the lid is on good and tight the coffee spoils. And keep it in the refrigerator, by all means!

BILLINGS: It's not the coffee. It's the cream, I'll bet. Unless the cream is thick and fresh the coffee will be inferior.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Among the approximately five hundred delegates and visitors at the seventh annual convention of the Western Pennsylvania-Southwest Virginia Synodical Unit of Lutheran Church Women on August 23 and 24 at Thiel College in Greenville was Mrs. Carl F. Eliason of Sheffield. Mrs. Eliason, Synodical president, conducted the business sessions.

During the two day convention the following officers were elected: Mrs. Eliason, president; Mrs. C. Douglas Herrick of Erie, vice president; Mrs. Donald R. Yost of Greensburg, treasurer. She warned against rigidity in program planning and suggested flexibility and informality as keys to relevant programs and projects.

The Rev. Dr. Leigh D. Jordahl, associate professor of church history at the Lutheran Theological Seminary in St. Paul, Minn., stated among other things that "Christian people are people who listen to God's revelation, minimally affirm the Gospel, choose to stand up and tell the 'good news.'"

Sister Betty R. Amstutz, director of social ministry, Central Pennsylvania Synod, graduate deaconess and social worker, discussed the statements of the Board of Social Ministry of the Lutheran Church in America, focusing upon race relations, poverty, Vietnam, conscientious objection to military service, marriage and family, and civil disobedience. The retiring president of the national LCW group, Mrs. E.G. Price of Mt. Lebanon, Pittsburgh, was presented a gift by the Western Pennsylvania-Southwest Virginia Synodical Unit as an expression of gratitude for her years of devoted service.

Other business at the convention included adoption of amendments to the constitution and the by-laws; delegates also approved a budget for 1969 with a goal of $377,000. The funds are used to assist the work of the boards of Lutheran Church in America.

Program chairman Mrs. Donald Yost was assisted by Mrs. Clarence Scranton, Mrs. Richard W. Solberg, Mrs. Edward C. Wolf and Mrs. Eliason, ex-officio, with Miss Lula Kivine of New Castle in charge of credentials and registration, and Mrs. Solberg the hymn leader.

"COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE"

THE WALLS OF A ROOM are the first place the average homeowner looks when thinking about where to place the furniture. And in a good many rooms, that is where all the furniture goes . . . against the walls.

This can be a pitfall in decorating for the greatest beauty and service. All too often it can lead to what is called the "ballroom look." Everything is lined around the perimeter of the room, leaving the center completely open . . . suitable for dancing.

Grant that walls are the logical place for many pieces . . . sometimes the only place. But just as often your room will function better when you adopt more flexible furniture arrangements.

Let your imagination help. Once you start thinking about the center of the room being used, you'll see many solutions. Pair sofas around the fireplace. Create a conversation group with a table and chairs. Look across your desk into the room instead of staring at the wall. And so on.

We'll be glad to help you with your room plan, and with the selection of the right furniture for your particular needs and space. Stop in . . . and be sure to look over the beautiful displays of quality furniture and accessories by leading designers and manufacturers.

Too Much Insulin

The chronic diseases that people live with are usually a major concern of wives and mothers who see to it that family members maintain their diets and medication schedules.

Traditionally, women are the "health guards" of the family, and they try to keep up-to-date on care of their loved ones. They need to be aware of new ways of treating the chronic diseases. New methods of treating diabetes -- for instance -- mean new life for millions.

For 40 years after the discovery of insulin in the 1920's it was thought that diabetes was a simple condition caused by the body's failure to produce sufficient insulin.

Injected insulin became the traditional therapy used to treat diabetes.

But then, in 1962, when scientists learned to measure insulin levels in blood, they discovered that many diabetics may not be suffering from lack of insulin at all. Rather, it was found that some have excess amounts of insulin in their blood --together with excess sugar. The action of this excess insulin is presumably blocked or it is held inactive in the blood.

It is now widely accepted that there are two types of diabetes: the juvenile-onset type (in which the disease usually appears before age 15), who do suffer from an insulin shortage; and the maturity-onset type (whose diabetes usually appears after age 40).

These latter, about 75 per cent of all diabetics, number at least two million. Four out of five of them tend to be overweight and many of them produce more than enough insulin for the body's needs.

Insulin excess in maturity-onset diabetics may be one reason for their overweight, since circulating insulin when it does ultimately lower blood sugar, can and often does increase appetite. By aiding the conversion of blood sugar to body fat this also leads to weight gain.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: Can you please tell me how I can prevent and get rid of the plastic odor that I get in a plastic tablecloth even after it has been cleaned, dried overnight and put away in a drawer for awhile?

Mrs. C. S. Zwetow

Heloise

THE GIRLS

By Franklin Folger

"In the next scene we're going to have to ask you to imagine the harem girls as Mrs. Petty thinks she saw a mouse!"

Many physicians nowadays, with this in mind, are putting their overweight diabetics on reducing diets. In some patients, a strict diet is all that is needed to keep blood sugar within normal limits.

When diet alone is insufficient, physicians may choose one of two basic types of oral antidiabetic drugs to lower blood sugar level. One of these--phenformin (DBI) -- is unique in that it does not stimulate the body to produce more insulin, but rather seems to help the previously blocked blood insulin increase use of blood sugar in the muscle while bringing about a reduction of excess insulin secretion. In the process, the diabetic frequently loses weight.

Wives and mothers of diabetics should know that the disease is not simply caused by a lack of insulin. And, most importantly, they should know that excess weight can be a sign of diabetes.

RED NOSE

Q. About two years ago (I am 40) I began having signs of arthritis. At about the same time my nose flared up and is now quite red. Any connection? Any treatment for the red nose?

A. The two conditions are probably not related and, of the two, the red nose may be more difficult to manage than the arthritis. Both problems should be discussed with your physician.

MUSCLE MEN

Q. How is it possible for weight-lifters to raise tremendous loads without injuring the back?

A. General muscular development and "know-how" are obviously needed to lift heavy weights. The theoretical maximum lift is something like 500 pounds. Much of the lifted weight is suspended by the spinal column. The rubbery pads (intervertebral discs) which fit between each bone of the spine withstand pressures up to 1000 pounds. So the weight-lifter comes nowhere near lifting enough to crush the spine.

When does a baby need hard sole shoes?

Most doctors recommend hard soles when the baby begins to pull himself up. There are good reasons for this.

The trouble is that too many mothers think of stiff soles when the doctor says hard soles. This writer has surveyed many doctors and found that they do not want stiff shoes on their baby's feet nor on themselves for that matter.

Hard sole shoes can and should be very flexible to allow normal foot functions. The baby needs a flexible sole in order to balance himself while learning to walk.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♥AQ743 ♦A1085 ♣KJ94

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

3♣ Pass ?

What do you bid?

A—Pass. A three bid, in this day and age, does not denote strength. You can almost be certain if you bid that partner has the type of hand on which he will proceed to four spades, in which case it is highly likely the opponents will double. Also, if you pass, the opponents may think your partner is trying to steal something and may enter the bidding. Nothing could suit your purpose better.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K9 ♦AQK64 ♣AJ752

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Our preference is two clubs, though we would not find fault with anyone who chose to bid three clubs. This is a powerful hand and, if our suits were spades and hearts, we would surely make a jump shift bid, inasmuch as it appears that we must play this hand in a minor suit, we prefer to take it slow and hear partner's next response.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K1085 ♥J94 ♣QJ973

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1♦ 1♥ 1♠ 2♦

Pass 2♥ 3♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Four spades. Your hand is equivalent to an opening bid facing an opening bid, and partner is marked to have club support in view of the fact that the opponents bid hearts and diamonds.

Q. 4—East-West vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♠KQJ1087 ♥9 ♦AJ9 ♣853

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♠ 3♥ 3♣ Dble. Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three clubs. While it is true that partner may be amply provided to take care of West defensively, nevertheless your hand is bound to prove a disappointment to partner in his attempt to defeat three hearts. It may prove that you will produce only one defensive trick. In partner's calculation you are expected to produce three. You must warn him.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠1065 ♥AQK7 ♦J96 ♣QJ4

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1♠ 1♦ 1♥ 1♠

2♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three clubs. This hand is certainly worth another bid, and if partner has something that resembles a diamond stopper there should be a splendid play for three no trump. If partner bids four clubs, go to five.

Q. 6—You are vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♥9764 ♦AKJ4 ♠AQ964

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♦ 3♠ 4♥ 4♠

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Four spades. If partner is strong enough to make a voluntary bid at the level of four, you will surely be safe for an 11 trick contract and you should let him know about your void in spades. If he merely returns to five hearts, you may retire from the bidding.

Q. 7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A96 ♥KQ ♦AJ964 ♣J104

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

1♥ Dble. Pass 1♠

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. It would be poor tactics for you to raise to two spades, giving partner the impression that you have a strong double. Your hand is more or less of a minimum character and unless partner can act again you will have missed nothing.

Q. 8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q10642 ♥92 ♦A2 ♣K752

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass 1♦ Pass 1♥

1♠ 2♥ 3♠ 4♥

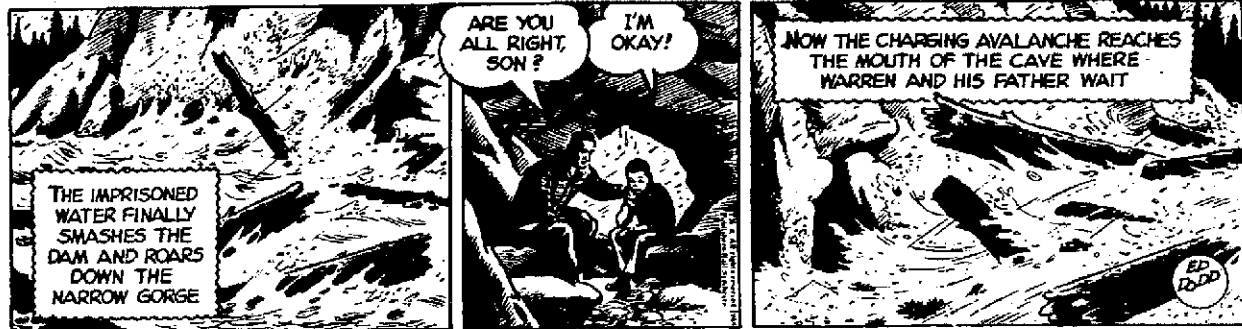

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. You bid your limit when you made your overall. Let partner now decide what to do.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — What you say and do now could have more far-reaching effects than you realize, so mark time, think things over — and maybe you'll decide to leave everything in status quo. In other words, NO impulsiveness!

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Generous planetary influences stimulate your adaptability; your competence at clipping out deadwood, non-essentials — AND the most attractive side of your personality.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Your Mercury only mildly favorable. You may have to work harder than you thought to achieve results, but they ARE attainable. Make the best use of your skills and don't scatter energies.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Quality, rather than quantity of effort, stick-to-itiveness and a willingness to assume extra responsibilities, if necessary, will pay dividends. Do not anticipate trouble. You should do well if emphasizing your best.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Waste no time getting this day out of the planning stage and into enthusiastic, well-executed action. Any possible opposition should stimulate you — not annoy.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Some interesting opportunities indicated, but some may be hidden, so you will have to ferret them out for yourself. The hunt could prove a lively one, and your findings should give you a great feeling of satisfaction.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Mixed planetary influence. Be careful not to speak out of turn, and don't press too forcibly for what you want, when a few well chosen words could persuade.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Keep your eyes on your MAIN goal now, and don't scatter energies by shifting from one thing to another. You can gain much ground by maintaining a consistent, comfortable pace.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Even though your schedule may be heavy, make up your mind to remain calm, unemotional. The views of others may be worth a hearing even if they differ from yours.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Be careful of the way in which you make your moves, whom you include in your plans. Wrong decisions could make or break your success pattern.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Give another look to matters you were unable to complete last month. A slightly different method may work better. Emphasize self-confidence, perseverance, congeniality.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Not much planetary help today. In general, it would be better to stick to routine matters. Perhaps, too, to take a little time to make some long-range plans.

YOU BORN TODAY are a constructive, keen-thinking individual; are shrewd, adaptable, reliable and conservative. Against all this, you have a tendency to be overly critical of others, which could cause needless enmity. Develop your excellent memory, reasoning faculties and gift of artistry. Many great discoveries can boast Virgoans as their researchers, assistants and final analysts. Birthdate of: Sarah O. Jewett, novelist.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

(c) 1968 by The Chicago Tribune

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

RUNNING AT 7000 FEET

Having the Olympic Games in Mexico City has stimulated considerable interest on performance at high altitudes (7,349 feet).

Medical and Training Services Committee chairman, Dr. Merritt H. Stiles, believes that many of the symptoms are of a psychological nature. The person unconsciously breathes faster, loses too much carbon dioxide and develops alkalosis. The latter causes light-headedness along with numbness and tingling of the extremities.

At high altitudes, there is less atmospheric pressure resulting in less absorption of oxygen thru the walls of the air sacs of the lungs. Dr. Stiles does not consider this significant since most of us use only 15 to 25 per cent of the available oxygen.

At 7,300 feet, performance should not be affected in field events or in running, swimming, or other activities which do not require more than two minutes of maximum effort. In other words, enough oxygen is available for short periods of time, and since there is less air resistance, the athlete may be able to run faster than at sea level.

Prolonged exertion demands more oxygen. A mile runner can never equal his sea-level time, no matter how long he trains. Adaptation to pressure is fastest in the athlete in good condition and, more so, if he trains vigorously during the first day or two in Mexico City. Circulation to the lungs and the output of the heart increase thru daily physical training will compensate for the lower oxygen uptake.

In this regard, these organs are in the same condition as they would be after weeks of adaptation to altitude.

The situation may change when the athlete takes it easy after reaching 7,300 feet due to the effects of de-training.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

QUININE AS REMEDY

Mr. J. writes: What is quinine used for?

Quinine is used in certain heart conditions, such as irregularity of the beat, and to prevent cramping of the leg muscles at night. It also is used in obstetrics and in a resin which is used to determine the presence or absence of acid in the stomach. More effective medications have superseded its use in malaria.

TONSILS AND VOICE

Mrs. W. writes: My 16-year-old daughter expects to sing professionally. Now we are told that she has swollen glands in the neck and her tonsils may have to come out. Will this affect her career?

No, but before surgery, make certain the tonsils are responsible for glandular swelling.

GASTRIC BLEEDING

A reader writes: Could anything besides ulcer cause stomach hemorrhage?

Yes. Enlarged veins in the esophagus (esophageal varicose veins) rupture occasionally. And, now and then, bleeding is traced to irritation of the duo-denum (duodenitis).

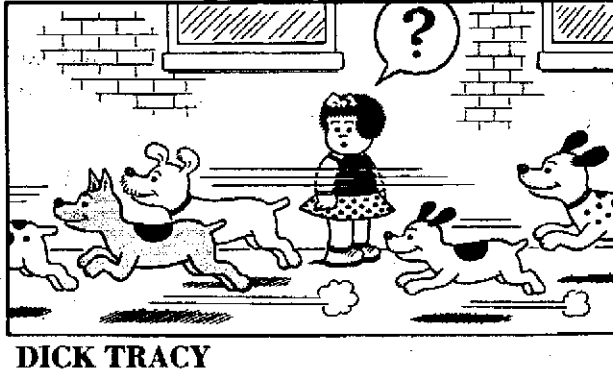

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT —

An improperly applied tourniquet may increase bleeding.

and more convenient way to shop.

How it works.

After you have opened your account, you in effect have a charge account at terbank symbol are good nationally as well.) You just take your card to the present your card, countersign the bill and—that's how it works.

What you get out of it.

You don't have to carry large amounts of cash. Or ever fear you'll run low. At the end of the month you'll get just one bill. And pay with just one check. All your receipts will be included. If you pay your full bill at the end of the month, this safe and convenient charge service will not cost you anything. Or you can pay as little as 5% (or $10, whichever is greater) of your monthly bill. Then you pay a service charge.

But you are able to buy what you need savings.

Now is the time to apply. Just fill out the coupon below and we will send you

THE KINZUA TAILWATERS

It may take years, but the time will come when it will be determined whether The Creator of all Things or the Pennsylvania Fish Commission controls the species of fish that will adapt themselves to the ecological conditions that have developed in the tailwater section of the river since the construction of the Kinzua Dam. And to my way of thinking, these will be wasted years.

For I am fully convinced that regardless of the manipulation of the flow from the higher gates, the downstream conditions are going to remain more favorable to trout than to any of the warm water species, a conviction that isn't shared by the staff of the Fish Commission. But a personal conviction which is based on my own experiences and those of hundreds of other fishermen who have been fishing the tailwaters for the past several seasons.

At first, as the huge monoliths were formed and the river tumbled through the limited openings in the construction area, the tailwater area became a fisherman's paradise for the bass, walleye and musky fisherman. For one reason or another the fish of these species swarmed into the turbulent and highly oxygenated waters there and what would have been considered fabulous catches in former years became commonplace.

But when the monoliths were finally completed and the discharge from the dam first became controlled by the gates, one could sense a change was taking place. Bass were still plentiful, some really over-sized walleyes were being caught in goodly numbers, and more than a fair number of muskies were being brought to net, but something was just different.

Then on one cold November night a couple of seasons back I got the first inkling of just what was taking place. Jim Hetrick of St. Marys and I were the only fishermen there at the particular time as the action hadn't been too good for the two previous weeks and most of the regulars had given up for the season. But Jim and I were either more determined or dumber than the rest, we were still at it on a nightly basis.

We had fished some three or four hours, I suppose, without success. I was at the top end of the cofferdam and was casting into the swift waters there. Jim was further down working his jig so that when it had swung around with the current he could work it back through the calmer waters along the shore.

If I remember right, we had already made up our minds that if one of us didn't do something pretty quick we'd go home—when I got a hard strike almost in the center of the white-capped current. I set the hook, and right away I knew that I was fastened into something really worthwhile. I called out to Jim, and he came running up the length of the cofferdam.

The spirited fish and the fast current provided me with an experience I will long remember. And although I finally got it to the side of the cofferdam, there was still the problem of finding a place where Jim could crawl down the 12-foot wall to net it. This we finally did and I tied the tired fish to the spot.

I couldn't see down into the deep shadows where Jim was searching for the fish in the beam of his flashlight, but his reports of progress were coming in loud and clear. Finally he called out, "Hey! It's a rainbow trout—about 20 inches and it'll weigh about three and a half pounds—what'll I do with it?" It wasn't trout season, so what could he do with it but cut it loose.

This catch fired the zeal of both Jim and I for fishing in the tailwaters and in the next three nights—before a real cold snap drove us to cover—I caught three more trout and Jim came up with five. The smallest either of us took at this time was a 15-incher that I caught on the second night.

Well, the rest of the story is already history. Outstanding catches of trout have been made in the tailwaters ever since. But still the Fish Commission biologists stubbornly insist that the tailwaters at the dam must remain a warm water fishery in spite of the fact that throughout the present season no notable catches of bass, walleye or muskies have been made by the thousands who have fished there. A few really sizeable warm water fish have been taken, but certainly not in the numbers they were in the good old days.

If the Kinzua Dam tailwaters was the first location where "the trend to trout" had taken place, I could understand their attitude. But a classic example of where another famed warm water stream experienced an ecological change in the tailwaters of a dam is the White River in Missouri. Downstream from this dam several miles of tremendous rainbow fishing has developed as the warm water species declined in numbers.

The same thing has happened at several dams in the East. And Bing Loding recently sent me a clipping from a newspaper published by the machinists union (sportsman's column) that similar fisheries have developed below western dams under the most unexpected circumstances.

In the column written by Charles Covell, he cites a case where a once-muddy stretch of the Colorado River where fishing was almost nonexistent, the tailwaters of Hoover Dam is an outstanding trout fishery. Below the Navajo Dam in New Mexico, 14 miles of trout fishing waters have developed in the desert. In all, Covell reports, more than a score of fisheries have been established or improved in the downstream releases of various dams in the Southwest, and most of the 1,200 miles of water so developed supports trout as the predominant species.

While I will agree with the Pennsylvania Fish Commission that more trout water in Warren County is one thing we don't need, it seems to me that it's becoming a pretty well established fact that in the tailwater sections of most dams Mother Nature is calling the turn of events and its quite evident she seems to have a preference for trout in the tailwaters of the Kinzua Dam. It may be that the commission biologists can outwit the irascible old lady, but I am one who doubts it.

Cale Yarborough Wins $102,000 Stock Car Race

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Cale Yarborough, the ex-foot-ball player who lives only 10 miles down the road, drove a Mercury to a bumper-to-bumper victory over David Pearson Monday in the $102,000 Southern 500-mile stock car racing classic.

The 29-year-old Yarborough, who now has won an unprecedented four super speedway events this year, took command of the race for good 88 circuits from the finish.

But the record crowd of 70,000 watched in awe the rest of the way as Pearson, driving a factory-backed Ford, slowly but surely closed a 25-second gap to almost pull out a victory.

The 200-pound, 5-foot-8 Yarborough had to survive a lengthy pit stop that cost him two laps early in the race.

Yarborough's share of the purse was $25,425, including lap money. It ran his season's earnings to $126,066—tops on the NASCAR grand national circuit for big-bore stock cars.

Keystone Cops Playoff Game

DeVore's Keystone took a 12-7 decision from Sheffield Tavern Sunday in a playoff game for the fourth place position in the Rec League standings and gained a spot in the league's playoff series.

A 15-hit attack by the winners included a grand slam homer by Don Holmberg in the third inning, two doubles and a homer by Dave Holmberg, who had a three-for-four night at the plate, four-baggers by Gene Rolls and Roy Swanson, and a double by Gary Rain, the winning hurler.

Lee Goldthwaite pitched and hit a double and a triple for Sheffield. Johnson hit a triple and a homer and Jay McAuley slammed a homer for the losers.

The Rec League's Shaughnessy playoff series opens tonight at Carbon Field with DeVore's, the fourth place team, playing City Ice, the regular season champs, in the first game and the Warren Sub Shop, the regular season runner-ups, taking on Towne and Country, the third place finishers, in the second game.

Pancho Gonzalez Stars In U.S. Open Tennis Play

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Old Pancho Gonzalez became the court killer of old and led the charge into the fourth round of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Monday before a crackling thunderstorm interrupted play with sixth-seeded Dennis Ralston on the brink of elimination.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A University of Pennsylvania crew won Monday the main event — the four-with-coxswain competition — in the final day of Olympic rowing trials at Long Beach Marine Stadium.

The team of four rowers and coxswain John Hartigan beat a Stanford Crew Association crew by more than a length, gaining the right to represent the United States at the Olympic Games in Mexico City.

The winning team was part of an eight-oar shell crew that lost to Harvard by five-hundredths of a second on Long Beach July 14.

In pairs-without-coxswain, Anthony Johnson and Lawrence Hough of the Potomac Boat Club, world and Pan American Games champions, overcame a Kansas State University team by about 350 yards.

The pairs-with-coxswain event was won by an Eastern Rowing Development Clinic of Boston team, which defeated a Lake Washington rowing club team by 4 1/2 seconds.

Steelers Cut 3

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers cut defensive back Bob Morgan, tight end Chet Anderson and line-backer Steve Jackson Monday, bringing them to within three of the National Football League limit of 43. The deadline is Tuesday.

world champion of the pros, reached back into his old bag of tricks and tenacity for a 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 triumph over pro Macolm Anderson of Australia.

The tall, dark-haired Mexican-American from Malibu, Calif., next plays left-handed Tony Roche of Australia, almost half his age, and he warned his horde of supporters:

"If you bet on me, get odds." Ralston, former U.S. Davis Cup ace from Bakersfield, Calif., was down two sets to one to wee Joaquin Lyo-Mayo of Mexico when the late afternoon storm struck the West Side Tennis Club, sending some 11,000 spectators scurrying to cover.

Eagles Top Boston Pats

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles took what appeared a commanding lead on Rick Duncan's 46-yard field goal at the outset of the fourth period and then withstood a furious Boston comeback for a 22-20 victory over the Patriots Monday in a pro football exhibition packed with fumbles and interceptions.

The Eagles' triumph before a crowd of 31,404 at Harvard Stadium was the National Football League's 10th triumph in 21 pre-season meetings with American League clubs. There are two games left in the interleague rivalry dominated heavily by the NFL just a year ago.

The Eagles, plagued by injuries and smarting from three straight exhibition defeats, appeared en route to an easy victory until the Boston defense took charge.

John Charles, a second year defensive back from Purdue, gave the Patriots renewed hope as he picked off a King Hill pass and raced untouched for a touchdown at 6:04 of the final period.

and with a powerful overhand, led Ralston 11-9, 2-6, 6-3 and was 3-4 and deuce in the fourth set. The match, along with two others will be completed Tuesday when all men's fourth round matches and two women's quarter-finals are scheduled.

In the other incompleting matches, Tom Okker of The Netherlands led pro Pierre Barthes of France 6-2, 13-11, 5-5, and Ron Holmberg had a set, 6-4, and was 2-1 on young Bobby Lutz of Los Angeles.

Earlier in the day, pro Nicola Pilic, 28-year-old Yugoslavian, punctured the seeded ranks with a booming service which knocked out 12th-seeded Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico, America's No. 1 ranking amateur, 6-4, 9-7, 4-6, 6-4.

Other favorites in the men's division, including top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia, the second-seeded Roche, Ken Rosewall, John Newcombe and America's Davis Cup twins, Arthur and Clark Graebner, all swept forward in straight sets.

Driver Killed When Car Flips

FLEMINGTON, N.J. (AP) — A young racing driver was killed Monday evening when his sprint car swerved into a guard rail at the Flemington Fairgrounds and flipped over, propelling him against a small restraining wall.

The driver was Gary Hansler, 24, of Boonton, who had been racing for less than two years, a track spokesman said.

The spokesman said that Hansler's seat belt snapped and he was thrown from his cockpit. He was killed instantly.

The accident occurred during the sixth lap of the 25-lap feature race before 11,000 spectators.

Hansler was doing about 75 miles per hour when he entered the curve and suddenly swerved into the guard rail.

Red-Hot Bob Murphy Takes Thunderbird Golf Classic

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Brash Bob Murphy, a red hot, red haired rookie, bolted past faltering Gary Player Monday and won the storm-delayed $150,000 Thunderbird Golf Classic with a final round 68 for 277.

It was the second consecutive victory for the paunchy, 210-pound Floridian, and the $30,000 first prize raised his money

Damascus Wins $108,200 Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Damascus spotted More Scents 20 pounds and then caught him with one of his patented stretch drives to win the $108,200 Aqueduct Stakes Monday at Aqueduct.

Braulio Baeza sent Mrs. Edith W. Bankcroft's Millionaire 4-year-old zooming down the stretch to win by 1 1/2 lengths.

Meadowhill's More Scents was eight lengths to the good of Bi-Jay Acres stable's 60.1 shot Fort Drum, who took the show by three lengths over Blue Streak's Stable's Spoon Bait.

Damascus, sent off as the 2-5 favorite by the crowd of 64,233, carried the top weight of 134 pounds over the 1 1/2 miles in 1:48 2/5 for his second straight victory in this stakes.

The winner returned $2.80, $2.20 and $2.10. More Scents paid $2.60 and $2.10 and Fort Drum $2.10. There was a minus show pool of $9,682.05.

Negroes Plan Black Arm Bands For Olympics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — American Negroes won't boycott the Olympic Games in Mexico this fall, says the man who tried to keep black athletes from participating.

But Harry Edwards, in a letter to the third National Black Power Conference, which ended here Sunday, said Negroes will wear black arm bands and he hopes they will pass up victories stand ceremonies.

Edwards said in the letter read to delegates that the boycott was cancelled because it failed to win enough support from black athletes.

earnings to $94,745.07, a record for a rookie. Of that amount, $71,936.49 has been won in the last four tournaments.

Murphy started the day in second place, two strokes back of Player, the reigning British Open champion from South Africa. But Player's game fell apart, Murphy overhauled him on the eighth hole and fought off the challenge of big Bob Lunn the rest of the way.

The last two threesomes—including all the leaders—were delayed one hour, 30 minutes by a torrential rainstorm that sent the players and the gallery of 30,850 scurrying for cover.

Lunn finished with a 69 for 280 but had to share second when Australian Bruce Crampton birdied the 18th, also for a 69.

Homero Blancas had 72 for 282 followed by Player, 76, Jack Nicklaus, 71, and Dan Sikes, 70, all at 283.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer had a 71 for 286.

Player took a bogey 6 on No. 5, three-putted No. 6, but got it back with a 20-foot birdie putt on No. 7. At the eighth, he again three-putted for a bogey and surrendered the lead to Murphy for good.

Murphy reeled off birds on five and six, went ahead when a great approach shot gave him an easy birdie putt on the eighth and then sank a 10 footer for another bird on the ninth.

Lunn made a run at him with birdies on Nos. 10, 11 and 13, but Murphy countered birdies on the 15th and 18th.

Driver Killed At Speedway

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — A 48-year-old New Fairfield, Conn., racing driver was fatally injured Monday in the featured race at the Hershey Stadium Speedway.

The victim, Bert Brooks, died after his auto bounced into two others during the annual Hershey 100, and flipped several times on the track.

The other drivers, Johnny Coy of Merrick, N.Y., and Lou Glimolat of Upper Montclair, N.J., were not hurt.

The race was the final for the 1968 season at the track in southeastern Pennsylvania.
